The following points for consideration regarding recent changes in alcohol and drug terminology were developed as a resource for entertainment development and production. They are not meant to limit the creative process.

Alcohol and Drug Terminology:

- Please use phrases such as "the abuse of alcohol" and "the abuse of drugs" rather than "substance abuse."
- The term "use" should be used rather than "abuse" when making statements about people who should not drink alcohol: youth (anyone under 21 years of age), pregnant women, recovering alcoholics, or operators of motor vehicles.
- Because drug use should not be considered recreational, avoid the term "recreational use of drugs," which trivializes drug-taking behavior.
- "Mood altering" tends to be a weak and inaccurate description of the powerful physiological effect that drugs have on the mind. It is recommended that the phrase "mind altering" be used.
- To focus attention on circumstances and environments rather than label youth, the terms "youth at risk for alcohol and drug use" or "youth in high-risk environments" are preferable to the term "high-risk youth."

Illicit Drug Use:

- All drugs are either "illicit" or "licit;" their use can be either "illegal" or "legal." For example, the purchase or public possession of alcohol, a licit drug, is illegal for underage youth, as is the use of prescription drugs by someone other than the person for whom it was prescribed or in a manner contrary to that of its intended use.
- When referring to illicit drugs, please do not describe them as "hard" or "soft," because these terms can imply that some drugs are virtually harmless.
- Whenever possible, use "injected drugs," "injection drug use," or "injecting drug abuser" rather than "IV drugs," "IV drug use," or "IV drug abuser." The term "IV" or "intravenous" has a distinctly medical connotation, and its use in this context may raise concern about medically appropriate procedures.

Impaired Driving:

- Since a person does not need to be drunk to be physically impaired, it is suggested that phrases such as "alcohol-impaired driving" or "drug-impaired driving" be substituted for "drunk driving" or "drugged driving."
- The term "accident" when referring to an alcohol or drug-related collision suggests that the incident could not have been prevented or that no one was at fault. Use of the word "crash" (i.e., drug-related crash or alcohol-related crash) is preferred.
